

Recommended Fact Checking Websites

AllSides.com: <https://www.allsides.com/>

See news from multiple perspectives: left, right and center.

FactCheck.org: <https://www.factcheck.org/>

A product of the Annenberg Public Policy Center, this site is terrific for checking up on political claims.

Hoax Slayer: <https://www.hoax-slayer.net/>

Similar to Snopes but tighter in scope, Hoax-Slayer focuses on email hoaxes, identity theft scams and spam.

LinkedIn: <https://www.linkedin.com/>

A professional networking website where you can look up the authors of articles and books to see if they're credible.

Media Bias/Fact Check: <https://mediabiasfactcheck.com/>

One of the most "comprehensive media bias resources on the internet"

Politifact.com: <https://www.politifact.com/>

The Pulitzer Prize-winning Politifact researches the claims of politicians and checks their accuracy.

Snopes.com: <https://www.snopes.com/>

Internet reference source for urban legends, folklore, myths, rumors, and misinformation.

Washington Post Fact Checker:

<http://www.washingtonpost.com/news/fact-checker/>

While focused primarily on political facts, it covers specific claims in-depth and with plenty of cross-referencing.
